ON THE HALLS IN THE MYERS STUDIO

Funny, rude, poignant and bursting with energy, On The Halls is a new play about two women who dominated popular theatre and entertainment over a hundred years ago. Marie Lloyd – the Queen of the Halls as she was known – was famous for her songs with their suggestive lyrics which tested the limits of Victorian prudery. She was loved by audiences who responded to her warmth, her courage, her remarkable talent and her generosity, as much as she was criticised by moralists for her vulgarity and irregular lifestyle. The establishment shunned her but the East End never forgot her. Vesta Tilley was a child star who spent over fifty years as a professional performer. She was a brilliant comic artist who specialised in impersonating and sending up male roles, ranging from the upper class toff to the hapless soldier rushing to war in 1914. She was a consummate professional who was careful never to attract scandal. On The Halls dramatizes the lives, loves and songs of these two women with tenderness, drama and a bit of cross-dressing comedy. But at the heart of the show are the dozen or so of their unforgettable songs that audiences still sing along to today. TICKETS: £12.00 Pass Card: £10.00

Thursday 27 March 7.45pm

From the same company that brought you the national tours of Stephen King's Misery and Robert Louis Stevenson's Treasure Island, the Blue Orange Theatre presents William Shakespeare's Macbeth as part of their 2014 national tour. The Blue Orange Theatre are a Birmingham based producing company who also tour a number of pieces per year. Macbeth will be performed with a cast of four actors playing multiple roles throughout the play, focusing on the witches influence over Macbeth. THE EPSOM LIGHT OPERA COMPANY

PRESENTS DIE FLEDERMAUS

The Epsom Light Opera Company return to the Epsom Playhouse in April 2014 for their exciting production of Die Fledermaus. This wonderful opera is, essentially, an opera about being wealthy, irresponsible and drinking vast quantities of champagne. It is an escapist fantasy where life is sensationalised, emotions are heightened, people dress up as bats and everyone ends up inebriated beyond their wildest hangovers. This production updates the action to the modern day. Drawing inspiration from the modern relations of the Viennese operetta: American dramas like Gossip Girl, Revenge, Mad Men, Desperate Housewives and the like which offer similar escapism. Therefore, Eisenstein and Rosalinde live in a penthouse apartment, Orlovsky's party is in nightclub and, well, prison is always going to be prison. With a new libretto in modern English commissioned especially for this production, Die Fledermaus should prove a very fun production with great music and comedy for all to enjoy. TICKETS: Sat Matinee Tickets from £14.00
