

Pointing your business in the right direction

We rescue, recover and renew businesses who find themselves in difficulty

business rescue®

WHAT WE DO

We offer a protective buffer that will give you breathing space.

For over 20 years we've been helping businesses, large and small, turn themselves around and get back on the road to recovery. Some clients have, after turning things around, gone on to grow into highly successful companies. Others have decided to close things down, regroup and move on to pastures new. Whatever the ultimate decision is, our experience has helped every client through the emotional roller coaster of managing a business that's facing difficulties.

If you're wrestling with problems such as County Court Judgements (CCJs), poor cash flow, creditors, funding or other business issues, we can help you identify the cause of your problems and create a plan to get you back on track. We have a simple, four step plan that can help you get back on the road to recovery.

Step 1: Alleviate creditor pressure

Step 2: Getting to the root cause

Step 3: Moving forward

Step 4: Ongoing safety net

"We take immediate action to help our client get a good night's sleep"

Dr Ron Mitchell, Managing Director of Business Rescue

HOW WE WORK

We never judge. We never blame. We simply guide and advise you through difficult times and help you rescue, recover and renew your business. We have a tried and tested approach to helping businesses who find themselves in difficulties.

Creating breathing space

We will deal directly with all creditors and negotiate on your behalf. We will also put any necessary defence measures in place to protect you from creditor and predator attacks.

Business Medical™

By using our proven Business Medical™ process, we will get to the very core of your business and identify the cause of your problems. Following our investigations, we will present a set of recommendations that will take your business forward.

Business Rescue Toolkit

We have an extensive toolkit of options, services and processes to help you and your business move forward. In addition, we have a network of industry professionals and strategic partners from marketing experts to insolvency practitioners who can help get your business back on the road to recovery.

Ongoing advice

We can, if requested, remain in the business throughout the recovery implementation journey to help provide an objective sounding board for important decisions. Sometimes our experience is used to support a board of directors, and in others we act as a mentor to an individual business owner.

We never forget it's your business

We work with business owners and offer advice every step of the way, but we always remember whose business it is. We feel it's critical that a business owner chooses the route that is most appropriate to them and always feels in control of the situation.

WHO WE HELP

We can look you in the eye and say “we understand what you’re going through.”

Many people who find themselves in difficulty believe that insolvency is the only answer. At Business Rescue we’ve seen scores of situations where company owners have been ready to walk away and give up. In the vast majority of cases, our consultants have been able to step in and offer an alternative that could save the business.

Several of our team have been “in your shoes”. They know what it’s like to run their own businesses, to feel the pressure, to experience difficult times and make tough decisions along the way.

“We can guide you through your options to salvage as much as possible and leave you with some dignity to consider your future.”

Dr Ron Mitchell, Managing Director of Business Rescue

We can work with any size business from the one man band to large limited companies.

We can work with any size firm in any market sector. However, our team of experts have particular experience and knowledge of:

WHAT OUR CLIENTS SAY

Business Rescue grasped the issues we were facing with vigour, and began to fully understand our business and the problems we were facing. They quickly undertook their investigation and began to talk to our creditors the same day. Within days we had a rescue strategy in place and the pressure began to fall - thank you so much.

Managing Director
Engineering Company

I knew I had problems with my cashflow and once I'd plucked up the courage to speak with someone - in this instance Business Rescue - they were so professional in their handling of my business. They made me feel completely at ease and took away some of the immediate pressure I was facing. I am now on a path to the recovery of my business.
