

Friday 1st May 2015

I am sitting at my desk at work having just scanned through all of my emails. I am very excited as next week Essex Dementia Care is to open a new dementia activity centre in Chelmsford.

There has been a lot of work going on in the background in preparation for our open day next Tuesday and I'm confident that it will be a success. The room we are going to use at Christ Church New London Road Chelmsford is having a refurbishment and is now completed.

We will have 6 new clients attending the first day and we have arranged for Wendy Podlesny a local entertainer to come and sing to us all the old songs in the theme of the 50s, so it should be a fantastic atmosphere.

Its bank holiday weekend and most people will be out and about with their families enjoying their time together. I will be working hard to finish two assignments for a charity & Social enterprise course I am doing at Anglia Ruskin University. It is a two year course and something I am really enjoying although I do find it difficult to fit it all with working full time as well.

Well that wasn't too bad it was short but hopefully sweet.
